

Premedia takes on Taopix photo album software

Premedia Technologies has been appointed distributor for Transeomedia's photo album software Taopix .

Taopix allows the creation of print based photo products and is one of the few photo production tools to offer end to end management of the lucrative album, including calendars and the school year book market.

Its photo workflow enables creation, online purchase,

Although Taopix meets all the high end requirements for the professional market, album applications can also be built for the consumer market, as it allows almost all of its features to be switched on or off at will.
